This morning at about 9:20 AM, Bob Olson, Tim Rodenkirk, and I saw the female King Eider from the 68th Street outlook north of Yaquina Head where others have seen her. Her brown head really stood out in the bright early morning sunshine. She was with mostly Black Scoters and a few Surf Scoters. She was regularly diving, especially before an oncoming wave, so patience can be required. Twice I saw her briefly chased from her position by a scoter. I would have had a hard time, I think, sorting through and finding her in the afternoon when she would be more backlit, so her brown head is not very visible.

It was from the burgh's gate that Bargates, the then main road into the town, took its name. The night before the tabernacle's opening, she prays for guidance. The winter storm that impacted the Midwest and Northeast over the past couple of days is moving into the Atlantic Friday. Very cold temperatures and dangerous wind chills are moving in behind the system. The next storm is forming, and will bring blizzard conditions to the northern Plains Friday Night into Saturday. Extreme wind chills to -55 F are possible in the northern Plains this weekend.

Following the victory of a $15 established hourly wage in the Washington state city of Seatac in November, coupled with the win of Kshama Sawant who ran for Seattle City Council as a Socialist Alternative candidate and a growing national movement led by low-wage retail and fast-food workers, organizers behind the '15Now Campaign' think the moment is now right to connect those across the country who are boldly calling for such an increase.

Good jobs are disappearing while the wealthiest 1% are taking an unprecedented share of the national income," says Sawant who plans to fight for the $15 wage in Seattle where newly elected Mayor Ed Murray has also endorsed the idea.

"Nobody should have to struggle on poverty wages just to satisfy big corporations' endless thirst for profits," she continued. "Fast food and low wage workers are rising up demanding a $15/hour minimum wage. Let^^s unite in the Fight for $15 and win an historic victory for working people.

There are two control regimes operating at the same time. One is about keeping people out, and the other is about keeping those who are in in line. One relies on old-fashioned repression through border guards, police, deportation etc, the other on what he calls "voluntary servitude" via maintaining one's profile, credit score, cv etc.

In this world, the willingness to submit is not enough, one has to be allowed to enter the world of self-policing, which is, today, the normal life. Seen from the other side of the fence, is the good life.

The Farallon Islands, located about 30 miles off the coast of San Francisco, are home to a wide variety of seals, seabirds, whales and sharks. But the US Fish and Wildlife Services still plans to shower them with rat poison.

Unfortunately, in addition to the native species, the islands are also overrun with house mice. Though the mice mostly eat crickets and salamanders, they also attract burrowing owls to the island. And when the owls run out of mice to snack on, they turn to other animals, especially the ashly storm-petrel, which uses the islands as a breeding site and depends on them to survive.

The United States returned to India Tuesday three ancient sculptures that had fallen into the hands of traffickers, following a month of tense ties triggered by the arrest of an Indian diplomat in New York. Relations between India and the United States were strained last month after authorities arrested Devyani Khobragade, a New York consular official, over treatment of her domestic servant. In a deal between the two countries, Khobragade was allowed to return to India last week just as a grand jury indicted her on two counts. India's consul general in New York, Dnyaneshwar Mulay, refused to acknowledge any link between the issues. But he expressed deep gratitude to US authorities for the return of the sculptures and hailed what he called strong bilateral ties.

They operate in the green glow of night vision in Southwest Asia and stalk through the jungles of South America. They snatch men from their homes in the Maghreb and shoot it out with heavily armed militants in the Horn of Africa. They feel the salty spray while skimming over the

All over the planet, the Obama administration is waging a secret war whose full extent has never been fully revealed -- until now.

Since September 11, 2001, U.S. Special Operations forces have grown in every conceivable way, from their numbers to their budget. Most telling, however, has been the exponential rise in special ops deployments globally. This presence -- now, in nearly 70% of the world's nations -- provides new evidence of the size and scope of a secret war being waged from Latin America to the backlands of Afghanistan, from training missions with African allies to information operations launched in cyberspace.

Harvey, pop. 30,000, a far south suburb of Chicago, is 90 percent black and Latino. Manning claims he was walking down the street on Dec. 30, 2012, when the officers began following him in a squad car. "Defendant officer stopped his car and told Mr. Manning, 'Come here!'" the complaint states. "Mr. Manning had done nothing wrong, and, therefore, did not stop. "Mr. Manning had no weapon or other objects in his hands. "After a short distance of moving away from the defendant officer, Mr. Manning slipped and fell. "As Mr. Manning tried to get up, one of the defendant officers willfully shot Mr. Manning in the back of his leg. "Mr. Manning fell again and tried to get up again. "Defendant officer then fired more shots at Mr. Manning "Mr. Manning suffered excruciating pain from these gunshot wounds. "One of the defendant officers then stood on top of Mr. Manning with the full force of his leg on Mr. Manning's back. "One of the defendant officers handcuffed Mr. Manning while he was lying down after having been shot." A witness tried to record the scene with his cell phone, but a Harvey officer grabbed the phone and threw it, saying "You touch the phone, I will shoot the shit out of you," Manning says in the complaint. In the second lawsuit, Miller claims she heard gunshots, "opened the back door and witnessed a young man, Paul Manning, lying on the ground after having been shot. He was screaming and asking for an ambulance. "Harvey police officers were surrounding Paul Manning with their guns drawn. "Upon information and belief, one officer was standing on Paul's back, simply as an excessive display of force." When Miller opened the door, her 14-week-old puppy, Nemo, ran outside. A police officer yelled to Miller's boyfriend, LeShon Wright, "Getyourdog!," the complaint states. "As Mr. Wright walked off the porch toward the dog, one of the defendant officers unholstered and raised his gun towards Nemo and Mr. Wright. "Mr. Wright became fearful for his life and stopped. "Nemo approached one of the defendant officers and sniffed his ankle. "Nemo did not growl, bark, or act aggressively in any way. "A defendant officer then shot Nemo." The officers would not let anyone approach the wounded dog from 4:30 p.m. until 11:15 p.m., according to the lawsuit. "A defendant officer said: 'Yeah, I shot the dog. What the fuck you gonna do about it?'" Miller claims. "The City of Harvey admitted that their police officers shot Nemo. "Ms. Miller and her children were so distraught by the circumstances surrounding Nemo's murder, and being forced to helplessly watch him die, that they moved from Harvey to Wisconsin," Miller says. Manning seeks punitive damages for excessive force, battery, and emotional distress. Miller seeks punitive damages for excessive force, illegal seizure, failure to intervene, and emotional distress. Both are represented by Victor Henderson and Rebecca Kaiser with Henderson Adam. The median income and home value in Harvey are about half the statewide median.

The tactics used by law enforcement are aggressive, surreptitious, and surprising to even longtime surveillance experts. One report released last month made front page news: an investigation by more than 50 journalists that found that local law enforcement agencies are collecting cell phone data about thousands of innocent Americans each year by tapping into cellphone towers and even creating fake ones that act as data traps.

Police departments around the country have created data "fusion centers" to collect and share reports about residents. But the information in these reports seldom bears any relation to crime or terrorism. In California, for example, officers are encouraged to document and immediately report on "suspicious" activities such as "individuals who stay at bus or train stops for extended periods while buses and trains come and go," "individuals who carry on long conversations on pay or cellular phones," and "joggers who stand and stretch for an inordinate amount of time." In Houston, Texas, the criteria are so broad they include anything deemed "suspicious or worthy of reporting." Many police departments and fusion centers have reported on constitutionally protected activities such as photography and political speech. They have also demonstrated a troubling tendency to focus on people who appear to be of Middle Eastern origin.

Chad Alan Cole, 45, of Holly, Michigan, was sentenced today to 25 years in federal prison after having pleaded guilty to production of child pornography, U.S. Attorney Barbara L. McQuade announced today. Judge Arthur J. Tarnow imposed the sentence.

Joining McQuade in the announcement was Special Agent in Charge Paul M. Abbate of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI).

Evidence established that Cole, who had previously been convicted of distributing obscene material to children, met a 12 year-old girl from Idaho online. Over the course of several months, Cole befriended the child before eventually convincing her to create sexually explicit pictures and videos of herself. Cole also sent images and videos of himself masturbating to the child and convinced the child to engage in sexually explicit conduct over Skype. After his arrest, Cole admitted to engaging in similar behavior with 10-20 other minors.

Cole previously worked as a firefighter for the Village of Holly and a 911 dispatcher for the City of Auburn Hills before being terminated as a result of his prior sex offense.

The Exposition of Artistic Research: Publishing Art in Academia introduces the pioneering concept of "expositions" in the context of art and design research, where practice needs to be exposed as research to enter academic discourse. It brings together reflective and methodological approaches to exposition writing from a variety of artistic disciplines including fine art, music and design, which it links to questions of publication and the use of technology. The book proposes a novel relationship to knowledge, where the form in which this knowledge emerges and the mode in which it is communicated makes a difference to what is known.

Taking the archival stimulus of time and motion measurement as its title and industrial work patterns as a starting point, the exhibition Time & Motion is the latest in a series of exhibitions and symposia addressing immaterial labour and new working patterns in the age of globalisation and creative capital. Rather than following the well-trodden path of casting the figure of the artist as digital labourer, or attempting to portray an expansive, post-colonial view of the nomadic, labouring diasporas, Time and Motion reflects a subversive and fragmented approach to the politics of work, rest and play within the global information economy.

"Our entire conceptual framework was mad. All these theories -- counterinsurgency warfare, state building - - were actually complete abstract madness. They were like very weird religious systems, because they always break down into three principles, 10 functions, seven 'or that. So they're reminiscent of Buddhists who say: 'These are the four paths', or of Christians who say: 'These are the seven deadly sins.' They're sort of theologies, essentially, made by people like Buddhist monks in the eighth century -- people who have a fundamental faith, which is probably, in the end, itself completely delusional."

If you overestimate how many voice minutes, text messages and data usage you need, you get screwed. If you underestimate, you also get screwed. If you have a contract, you get screwed if the service ends up being bad. If you don't have a contract, you may find that a company can suddenly raise prices, and so you may get screwed there, too. Studying your bill often reveals still more ways you have been screwed. Did someone with a foreign number text you? Unlucky you! Did you download a ringtone thinking it was free? Oops! You're screwed. Your bill is a maze of fees: activation fees, upgrade fees, early-termination fees, 411 fees, mysterious third-party fees, fees no one can understand. Customer service is mostly a joke.

Dustin Hensley, 30, of Springfield, Ohio, was sentenced to 300 months in prison for producing, distributing, and possessing child pornography. Hensley was a deputy sheriff in Clark County, Ohio, until he was arrested on the child exploitation charges.

Carter M. Stewart, U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of Ohio; Kevin R. Cornelius, Special Agent in Charge, Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI); Clark County Sheriff Gene Kelly, Clark County Prosecutor D. Andrew Wilson; and members of the Franklin County Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force announced the sentence imposed today by U.S. District Judge Timothy S. Black.

According to court documents, Hensley produced a sexually explicit video involving a minor earlier this year. He also distributed or attempted to distribute one or more visual depictions of a minor engaging in sexually explicit conduct and knowingly possessed images of child pornography. FBI agents and Clark County deputies arrested Hensley in July 2013. Hensley pleaded guilty on November 7, 2013, to one count each of production of child pornography, distribution of child pornography, and possession of child pornography.

Hensley was also sentenced to 10 years of supervised release, to be served following his prison term. During that time, he will be subject to various conditions, including restrictions and/or prohibitions of his computer usage, installation of monitoring software on any of his computers, prohibitions on his possession of obscenity in any form, participation in recommended treatment programs, and complete disclosure of any contact with minor children. If he violates one or more of the conditions of any supervised release imposed, he may be returned to prison for all or part of the term of supervised release.

The Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act requires that Hensley register as a sex offender following his prison term and keep his registration current anywhere that he lives, works, or goes to school. He must update his registration no later than three business days after any change of his residence, employment, or student status.

Millions of older Americans say they will never be able to retire. They simply don't have the savings. Roughly three-quarters of Americans are living paycheck-to-paycheck, with little to no emergency savings...50% have less than a three-month cushion and 27% had no savings at all..." "No savings at all"? That's right. So retirement is out of the question. A sizable chunk of the adult population is going to punch a clock until they keel-over in the office parking lot and get hauled off in the company dumpster. And those are the lucky ones, the so called baby boomers. By the time we get to the millennials it'll be even worse because the economy will have been ravaged by 25 or 30 years of austerity leaving the proles to scrape by on hardtack and gruel. Pensions are already being looted, Social Security is under fire, and any small stipend that supports the poor, the unemployed, or the infirm is going to be terminated. That's why everyone is so down-in-the-mouth, because their expectations of the future are so bleak.

The conference is an interdisciplinary forum for academics and practitioners working in the fields or at the intersection of cinema, performing arts, visual arts and media. The conference aims to explore the role of the body in articulating and reflecting the changes in contemporary arts and media practices as well as the theoretical discourses they generate.

In this sense, the body is seen as a discursive field for thinking about the various avatars of the image and visualization process in the contexts of the recent cinematic productions and new media facilities, about the dynamics that confronts the concept of avant-garde and its constant undermining by postmodernism, about the actual dimensions of the dispute between classical theatricality and contemporary performativity, about the intricate relations between authorial discourse and expanded spectatorship, about interactivity as a catalyst for multimediality and about the tensions between public space and intimacy when engaging with (social) media environments.

All this talk of nighthawks and penguins, and the questionable origin of certain vagrants brings back memories. Some years back, it seems like it was around 1988-89 I received what certainly was a bonafide report of two Red-footed Boobies in Yaquina Bay. The woman who reported them to me was a some time birder from Neskowin. I do not know at this writing whether or not she is still living.

I received the report late one November afternoon, too late to check it out. The woman had been with several other people at Yaquina Bay earlier in the day. From the road leading to the jetty, they had observed two birds she originally took to be gannets. swimming and diving from the first finger of rocks west of the bridge. She described them as having white bodies, with black wings, a bluish bill, and red legs and feet. In addition, at the time of the sighting she drew a picture of one of the birds as it appeared to her. The drawing leaves no question that she and the others did see Red-footed Boobies. I still have the drawing in my possession. (At this moment I don't know exactly where, but I have seen it within the last twelve months).

I was at the site first thing the next morning, but the birds were gone. At the time there was a Korean log ship in port. I attempted to find out if the boobies had ridden the ship from some point south, but the captain was away at the time, and I was unable to communicate with anyone in the all-Korean crew.. I have always suspected the birds presence in Yaquina Bay to be ship-assisted. But under the circumstances any ideas of how they arrived is a matter of conjecture..

While the total prison population has decreased by more than 20 percent in the past decade, the number of incarcerated people over 55 years old has increased by more than 70 percent. These elders do not need to be incarcerated. The risk of committing a new crime is about 5% for older people, compared with an overall recidivism risk of nearly 40%.

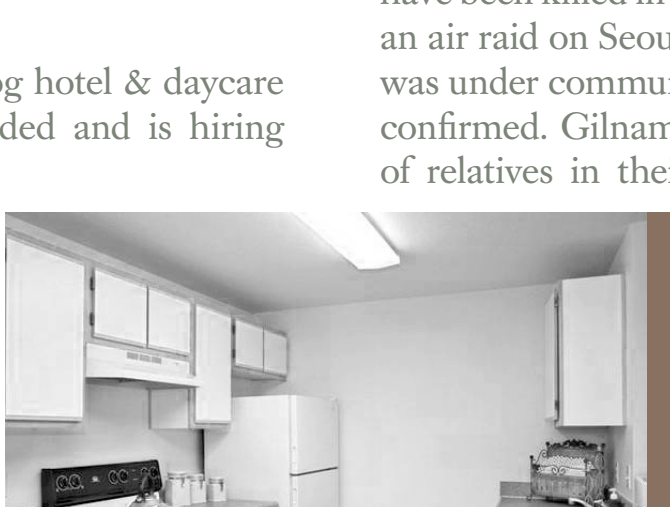

Thousands of seniors are being confined to cruel and degrading conditions as Parole Commissioners deny their release from prison even when they pose a low risk of endangering public safety and show a clear ability to reintegrate. This culture of permanent punishment does nothing to enhance public safety, but it does violate human rights and waste financial and human resources.

The ocean has been naturally radioactive since primordial times, and received quite a lot of fallout during the nuclear weapons testing era. Chernobyl added additional radioactive contamination to all of the world's oceans, though considerably more to the North, Baltic, and Black Seas than to the Pacific. In addition, the Sellafield accident released quite a lot of contamination into the Irish Sea, and nuclear accidents in other locations have contributed as well. Ocean scientists have been measuring and tracking the radiation from all of these sources for decades, and have given us a very good idea of how the radiation found in different parts of the world's oceans differs, where it came from, and how it moves through the environment.

This historical knowledge has been very useful for understanding the effects Fukushima has had and will continue to have on the Pacific. Many excellent researchers from Japan and abroad have been investigating this closely since March 2011, and anyone who is hoping to know more about what impact Fukushima radiation will have on the ocean far from Japan in Hawaii, Alaska, or near California, for instance should become familiar with what Fukushima ocean studies have shown. These researchers' collaborations have been a model of cooperation among nations and institutions, and while the picture is not yet complete, the outlines how much radiation is in the ocean, where it will go, and when it will get there have been fairly well estimated.

On the morning of his release, journalists and supporters of Samer Issawi began gathering at the family's home. Israeli occupation forces had already raided the Issawis' home at dawn and the previous night, warning the family not to hold celebrations.

"They raided the house while I was praying at dawn and ordered us to refrain from celebrating," Samer's mother said. "But this was out of our hands. We could not control people and stop them from celebrating and we did not want to."

Neither the intimidation nor the presence of Israeli military forces at the entrance to Issawiyeh could prevent the massive celebrations that accompanied Samer's arrival. A group of women of all ages marched from Samer's house into the streets as Samer, his mother and his sister Shireen were making their way home after Samer was released from Israel's Shatta prison.

The women and girls created a wedding-like atmosphere, chanting revolutionary slogans, banging on /darbuka / drums and singing traditional Palestinian songs adapted for the occasion. As soon as the bus carrying Samer and his family made it into Issawiyeh, the crowd erupted euphorically.

Celebratory gunshots were fired in the air, youth climbed atop fences to catch a glimpse of their hero and children kept chanting Samer's name and the word "freedom." It was a popular and festive protest, bringing together Palestinians of all ages and political affiliations, something that occupied Jerusalem has not seen in a long time.

"The House with a Sunken Courtyard," originally published in Korean in 1988, is a melancholy and ruminative tale of hardship and loss endured by ordinary people pummeled by geo-political forces over which they have no control. The narrator, 40-something Kim Gilnam, recalls the year three decades ago that he, his mother and three siblings spent living alongside four other struggling families in the cramped middle and outer quarters of a formerly grand old house--whose inner quarters are inhabited by the landlord's family--added a distinctive concave courtyard.

It is 1954, one year after the war ends with an armistice, a few million casualties, and the consolidation of the division between communist North Korea and Western-oriented South Korea. During the war, Gilnam's family lost contact with his father, who may have been killed in an air raid on Seoul, the capital of South Korea, when it was under communist control--though this remains unconfirmed. Gilnam's mother entrusted to the care of relatives in their hometown of Jinyeong while she tried to find work and a new home in Daegu, a city in the southeastern part of South Korea. The story begins with Gilnam's elder sister fetching him from Jinyeong, where he has lived for the past three years, and bringing him to the Janggwandong district of Daegu. Gilnam is 11 or 12 years old, having just finished primary school.

Alan Read maps out the thinking behind "abandoned practices", an emerging field of enquiry, proposed within his writing and developed in practice by a widening number of performance-oriented artists ists and researchers. Drawing a theoretical basis from the work of Isabelle Stengers and Giorgio Agamben, Read's argument shifts attention to lost, redundant and marginalised practices, over and above those that survive, continue, or are successful in contemporary impact. His talk seeks to identify, recover, and examine examples abandoned for economic, political or disciplinary reason, arguing for the value of a radical inclusivity, rather than reduction.

A Renoir painting that was allegedly picked up at a flea market for $7 was stolen from a museum more than 60 years ago and must be returned, a United States federal judge ruled. Eastern District of Virginia Judge Leonie Brinkema awarded ownership of the disputed 1879 oil painting on linen to the museum in Baltimore, ruling it had been stolen from there in November 1951. "The Baltimore Museum of Art is pleased that the US District Court of the Eastern District of Virginia has awarded ownership of the stolen Renoir painting, 'On the Shore of the Seine,' to the museum," it said in a statement following Friday's ruling. "We look forward to celebrating the painting's homecoming with a special installation in the galleries in late March." The judge rejected the ownership claims of Marcia "Martha" Fuqua, said court documents which put the market value of the postcard-sized painting at $22,000. Fuqua said she bought the painting at a West Virginia flea market for $7 in 2009.

A Georgetown, Indiana man listed on the National Registry of Sex Offenders was sentenced in United States District Court on January 9, 2014, by U.S. District Judge John G. Heyburn II, to 10 years in prison followed by a lifetime of supervised release, for possession of child pornography announced David J. Hale, U.S. Attorney for the Western District of Kentucky.

James W. Dotts, Jr., 38, was subject to supervised release from the Southern District of Indiana, which began on February 13, 2012, as a result of a conviction for possession of child pornography. On February 12, 2013, Dotts admitted to downloading over 500 computer image files and approximately 12 movie files depicting child pornography onto a computer at his employer's facility located in Louisville, Kentucky. He admitted to defeating his employer's security software, downloading the images from the Internet, saving the images to the computer, and transferring the images to a USB thumb drive that he carried back and forth from home to his job site. Dotts admitted that he began downloading adult pornography in June 2012, then began downloading child pornography in January 2013.

A search of Dotts' locker at his place of employment resulted in the discovery of four high-capacity thumb drives. Dotts admitted that the thumb drives contained images of non-nude children, which he had downloaded from the Internet. The USB drives and the computers used to download the child pornography were seized by the FBI for forensic analysis. The forensic analysis revealed five images of child pornography located on one of the computers and approximately 270 images of child erotica. At the time those files were downloaded, Dotts was the only employee with access to the computers.

A storm dropped a blanket of light, powdery snow across the Northeast and ushered in frigid temperatures Friday that were unusual even for cities accustomed to blasts of winter weather. The storm, which shut down major highways temporarily and grounded flights, was blamed for at least nine deaths in the eastern half of the country.

The nor'easter was accompanied by plummeting temperatures that on Friday morning reached 8 degrees below zero in Burlington, Vt., with a wind chill of 29 below and 2 degrees in Boston, with a wind chill of minus 20. It dumped 23 inches of snow in Boxford, Mass., and 18 inches in parts of western New York near Rochester. Thirteen inches of snow fell in Boston, while Lakewood, N.J., got 10 inches and New York City's Central Park got 6.

A 35-year-old New York man has been charged with hate crimes in connection with seven "knockout" assaults, including attacks on two elderly woman and a mother walking with her daughter, police said Saturday.

Barry Baldwin, a Brooklyn resident, was charged with six counts of assault as a hate crime, six counts of aggravated harassment as a hate crime, and other crimes for a spate of attacks between November 9 and December 27 in predominantly Jewish sections of Brooklyn, police said.

On November 9, Baldwin allegedly punched a 78-year-old woman who was pushing a stroller -- apparently as part of the "knockout" assault game, where people try to knock a random stranger unconscious with a single blow. The victim was knocked to the ground.

On December 7, he allegedly struck again, punching a 20-year-old woman in the back of the head in Brooklyn.

The horrendous violence that has torn the lives of South Sudanese in the past three weeks has caught many people by utter surprise. Former Vice President Riek Machar, believed to be leading a rebellion against President Salva Kiir, appears determined to get a favourable political settlement at whatever cost.

Reports of violence in South Sudan are increasing dramatically, creating an ever-larger humanitarian crisis, one that already verges on the "catastrophic" according to several relief organizations on the ground. More than 200,000 civilians have already been driven from their homes, and the chief UN humanitarian official for the region, Toby Lanzer, has declared that this number could reach 300,000 to 400,000 "in a matter of days". Many of those who have fled, even if they have reached UN camps, are without clean water or food. Some 76,000 people, mainly women and children, have fled Bor and its environs for Aerial, 30 miles to the west in neighbouring Lakes State. Conditions are appalling.

Maximiliano Cordova, 20, of Albuquerque, New Mexico, was sentenced this afternoon to 188 months in federal prison, followed by a lifetime of supervised release, for his child pornography conviction. Cordova also was ordered to pay $500 to the identified victim in his count of conviction. The sentence was announced by Acting U.S. Attorney Steven C. Yarbrough and Special Agent in Charge Carol K.O. Lee of the FBI's Albuquerque Division.

Cordova was arrested by the FBI on May 6, 2013, on a criminal complaint alleging that he distributed, received, and possessed visual depictions of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct. Cordova subsequently was indicted and charged with two counts of distribution of child pornography, two counts of receipt of child pornography, and one count of possession of child pornography.

The investigation leading to Cordova's arrest was initiated in mid-

January 2013 after an FBI agent who was working in an undercover capacity in New Jersey signed onto a publicly available peer-to-peer (P2P) file sharing network that was being used by individuals who were sharing child pornography images. The agent learned that one of the individuals sharing child pornography images on the P2P network was using an IP address subscribed to Cordova's residential address. On May 3, 2013, the FBI executed a search warrant at Cordova's residence.

While executing the search warrant, FBI agents observed a laptop computer on Cordova's bed that was running and displaying information for the P2P network that was used for sharing child pornography. The FBI seized the laptop computer, other computers, and other computer-related media from Cordova's residence. A forensic of the laptop computer confirmed that it contained child pornography images.

On October 1, 2013, Cordova entered a guilty plea to one count of distribution of child pornography. In his plea agreement, Cordova admitted that he had been using a file sharing program to distribute, receive, and possess child pornography for approximately six months prior to his arrest. Cordova also acknowledged that a forensic examination of his computers and computer-related media revealed that Cordova possessed more than 1,000 child pornography images and videos.

Good day to you and your family, I hope my email will arrive to you at good time. My name is Mr. Rami Makhoulf writing from Damascus Syria. I am 43years and i was a politician, a wealthy Syrian businessman and maternal cousin of President Bashar Assad.

Why I'm contacting you is to know if we can have a personal conversation, whatever truth you may brief me will be highly recommended.

Tell me more about your country, how good it will be to invest in your country, Such as buying of properties, or real estate and some tourist places or any profitable investment venture that will yield good profit.

I will like to relocate my family out from Syria, here in my country there is fire on the mountain, i need a foreign partner to enable me transfer my investment capital and then relocate with my family, honestly, i wish to work with you.

I will appreciate whatever result you may brief me, Do let me know your idea and knowledge regarding this or any other profitable investment venture you may suggest.

We have huge capital for investment, If we can develop a good business relationship with you on mutual agreement and understanding, probably we can invest together as partners, if you're interested with my proposal.

In my next mail I will explain the full details of the project and interest, i shall tell you more about myself when I read from you, you may as well tell me little more about yourself when replying.

I look forward to read from you at your earliest convenient time.

Regards Mr. Rami Makhoulf

Despite overwhelming scientific evidence that feral domestic cats, a non-native invasive species, negatively impact native wildlife in the United States, the Department has no official management policy. New research by scientists from the Smithsonian Conservation Biology Institute and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service have estimated that domestic cats kill approximately 2.4 billion birds and 12.3 billion mammals every year in the United States. Un-owned (e.g., feral) cats were estimated to be responsible for nearly 70 percent of the estimated bird mortality and nearly 90 percent of the estimated mammal mortality.

Today, Iraq remains a country (roughly the size and population of Texas) you destroyed, a country where over a million Iraqis, including many children and infants (remember Fallujah?) lost their lives, millions more were sickened or injured, and millions more were forced to become refugees, including most of the Iraqi Christians. Iraq is a country rife with sectarian strife that the prolonged invasion provoked into what is now open warfare. Iraq is a country where al-Qaeda is spreading with explosions taking 20, 30, 40, 50 or 60 lives per day. Just this week, it was reported that the U.S. has sent Hellfire air-to-ground missiles to Iraq's air force to be used against encampments of "the country's branch of al-Qaeda." There was no al-Qaeda in Iraq before your invasion. Al-Qaeda and Saddam Hussein were mortal enemies.

A n o t h e r day of mild weather for Japan and Korea as High pressure dominates on Tuesday. Things will be in a gradual state of change through mid-week though as a developing low pressure system that is already bringing wide spread showers in eastern China starts to move east through South Korea and in to Japan on Wednesday and Thursday. For the most part this low will bring rain showers from the southern Japanese islands (including Okinawa) north to Hokkaido but higher elevations will see snowfall on Wednesday. By Thursday afternoon as the low passes and another shot of cold Siberian air rolls south expect any precipitation left over to change quickly over to snow.

A Chinese company in Madagascar, with strong links to the government, is accused of unlawfully acquiring land, blighting the environment and leaving farmers destitute

When a Chinese businessman first approached Malagasy farmer Jean Manantsoa, 47, in April last year with an offer to lease his family rice fields, Jean had no idea of the untapped pockets of potential natural wealth beneath. "It was a surprise that there was gas beneath my land," Jean says, who now sells meat to support his wife and six children, in his commune of Mahaboboka, a sandy, flat expanse in Madagascar's arid southwest. Feeling pressured by the representative of the company, Madagascar Southern Petroleum Company (MSPC), Jean signed an open-ended lease for five million Malagasy ariary a year (1,420). He received the first year's payment but nothing this year even eight months after the 1 April deadline. Jean now claims his paddies are ruined; a metal drilling bore and concrete slab sits on his rice field and the surrounding brown earth is churned into dry clods.

Kelly Thomas, a homeless man who suffered from schizophrenia, died in hospital in 2011. He had beaten, tasered and kicked to death by cops from the Fullerton County Police Department while begging for mercy. The sickening incident of police brutality was caught by a surveillance camera.

We know from surveillance footage that former Fullerton officers Manuel Ramos and Joseph Wolfe and former Cpl. Jay Cicinelli gave the 37-year-old, unarmed, mentally ill man confusing orders that he could not follow. We know that he tried. He cried out “I’m trying,” “I’m sorry.” We saw some of the six officers involved in the incident stretch Thomas’ arms behind him until he cried out in pain. We heard

Thomas scream “Dad! Dad!” 30 times as he was lying on the ground gasping. We saw that the beating continued. Officer Ramos said to Thomas, “Now see my fists? They are getting ready to fuck you up.” A graphic (warning) image of Thomas’ face following the beating surfaced on line and can be seen here. But a jury has ruled these men not guilty of murder.

As the verdict was read Monday, NBC reported, the victim’s father Ron (himself a former Fullerton PD deputy) “burst into tears, kicking or stomping his foot.” “Where do we really find justice any more in our justice system? It has been proven right here today that they will get away with it. They will get away with it,” Thomas’ father said.

Dear Friend, Seeing this email message would be a surprise to you but kindly read it carefully and you will understand the reason why I am contacting you for this purpose. However, this correspondence is UN-official and private, and it should be treated as such. I also guarantee you that this transaction is hitch free from all what you may think of.

I am Mr. Ming Mui, Vice President & Branch Manager, Industrial and Commercial Bank of China (USA) NY, Canal Street Main Branch, New York, and I am contacting you based on Trust and confidentiality that will be attached to this transaction.

The Management and the Legal department of our bank (Industrial and Commercial Bank of China (USA) NY) in a recent meeting recommended that the account of late Mr. William Aucoin, who was one of my branch depositor, should be declared Dormant, confiscated and the depositor’s fund sent to the Bank Treasury according to U.S.A Bank and financial law. Late William Aucoin died on 28th June 2010 of prostate cancer at the Aventura Hospital and Medical Center in Aventura, Florida. The bank having made several efforts to contact any of his relatives to claim this money but without success decided to confiscate the fund and declare it public fund.

Late Mr. William Aucoin was an account holder in my branch; he owns a dollar account with a huge sum of money deposited in a Secret account with my branch. In fact, since his death, no next of kin of the account holder nor any relative of him has shown up for the claim of this fund, this is because he has the account as a secret account thus he left all the documents for the deposit with me as his account officer and financial adviser.

This is where I am interested and where I want you to come in, I want you to come in as a relative of the deceased; do not bother that you are not in any way related to him because I am in position to affix your name as the next of kin to the deceased and no one will question it since I am the officer in charge of the account. I will give you the relevant documents and contacts to file the application and then I will effect the approvals for the transfer of the fund to your nominated bank account. I will be the one to provide the vital documents for the claims of the money and then advise you exactly how we should handle it.

Please include your telephone number when replying this mail so I can call to give you more information as soon as you indicate your willingness to assist in this transaction. The whole Procedures will last only 9 working days to get the fund retrieved successfully without trace even in future. After the transfer of the money to your nominated bank account, we shall share the money 70-30 that is I will have 70% while you will have 30%.

Kindly respond promptly so that I can advice you on what next to do. Please reply to this my home email address: m00ming@cooltoad.com

I will be waiting to hear from you. Yours truly, Ming Mui.

Vice President & Branch Manager, Industrial and Commercial Bank of China (USA) NY.

A U.S. District Court jury today convicted James O. Napier, 39, of Cincinnati of producing child pornography involving an 11-month-old infant and an approximately 9-year-old child and placing the videos and images on the internet.

Carter M. Stewart, United States Attorney for the Southern District of Ohio; Kevin Cornelius, Special Agent in Charge, Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI); and agencies in the Greater Cincinnati Internet Crimes Against Children (ICAC) Task Force announced the verdict returned today following a trial that began January 13 before Chief U.S. District Judge Susan Dlott.

Trial testimony showed that in November 2009 Napier used an 11-month-old infant for sexual gratification, molested the infant, and made a video recording of it before placing it on the internet. Other testimony showed that as recently as November 2012, Napier sexually exploited a girl who was approximately 9 years old and produced videos of those acts.

FBI agents began investigating Napier based on information from the FBI Office in Phoenix that Napier was advertising the sale of child pornography on a website. FBI agents arrested Napier on January 18, 2013. He has been held without bond.

After less than one hour of deliberation, the jury convicted Napier of nine counts of production of child pornography, each punishable by at least 15 and up to 30 years in prison. The jury also convicted Napier of one count each of transportation of child pornography, distribution of child pornography, and receipt of child pornography. Each of those crimes is punishable by at least five years and up to 20 years in prison. Judge Dlott will schedule a date for sentencing.

Common denominator of the show is especially the iconography of the works, which during last year shifted to a greater attention to the landscape and the objects instead of the human figure. The latter remains perceived in the artist’s works, sometimes as desolate absence, sometimes as imagined presence orembodyed object, this all leads to the themes of war and border line, where the tension between the subject of the work and the material structure surrounding it is always central. The artist resolves the “setting” in a different way each time. Sometimes we find a pictorial sfumato, where spaces have unclear outlines, almost made up; sometimes the claustrophobia of the angles of closed rooms won’t give the audience any opportunity to escape; sometimes too-open spaces suggest a necessary but at the same time un-useful escape; eventually liquid and matteric monochromies, which have no way out and look almost dreamlike, show us items and characters in an atemporal and aspatial limbo, as if time and events were inescapable.

California produces more new billionaires than any place this side of oligarchic Russia or crony capitalist China. By some estimates the Golden State is home to one out of every nine of the world’s billionaires. In 2011 the state was home to 90 billionaires, 20 more than second place New York and more than twice as many as booming Texas.

The state’s digital oligarchy, surely without intention, is increasingly driving the state’s lurch towards feudalism. Silicon Valley’s wealth reflects the fortunes of a handful of companies that dominate an information economy that itself is increasingly oligopolistic. In contrast to the traditionally conservative or libertarian ethos of the entrepreneurial class, the oligarchy is increasingly allied with the nominally populist Democratic Party and its regulatory agenda. Along with the public sector, Hollywood, and their media clique, they present California as the spiritual inspiration for modern “progressives” across the country.

Through their embrace of and financial support for the state’s regulatory regime, the oligarchs have made job creation in non tech-businesses: manufacturing, energy, agriculture: increasingly difficult through “green energy” initiatives that are also sure to boost already high utility costs. One critic, state Democratic Senator Roderick Wright from heavily minority Inglewood, compares the state’s regulatory regime to the “vig” or high interest charged by the Mafia, calling it a major reason for disinvestment in many industries.

Yet even in Silicon Valley, the expansion of prosperity has been extraordinarily limited. Due to enormous losses suffered in the current tech bubble, tech job creation in Silicon Valley has barely reached its 2000 level. In contrast, previous tech booms, such as the one in the 90s, doubled the ranks of the tech community. Some, like UC Berkeley economist Enrico Moretti, advance the dubious claim that those jobs are more stable than those created in Texas. But even if we concede that point for the moment, the Valley’s growth primarily benefits its denizens but not most Californians. Since the recession, California remains down something like 500,000 jobs,

Learn how to best explore the Off-shore Leaks Database by watching this video. The names and connections are part of a cache of 2.5 million leaked files ICIJ analyzed with more than 110 journalists over the last two years. Media partners include more than 50 leading organizations, including The Guardian (U.K.) and Le Monde (France), Sueddeutsche Zeitung (Germany), El Pais (Spain) and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. CChinese authorities moved aggressively on Tuesday and Wednesday to block online access to the reports by ICIJ and its partners. Not only did internet censors prevent readers in China from accessing ICIJ.org, but they also blocked the sites of El Pais, Le Monde, Sueddeutsche Zeitung, the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., and the U.K. and U.S. editions of The Guardian, according to reports from news organizations and analytics by GreatFire.org, which monitors web censorship in China. In Beijing, a spokesman for the Ministry of Foreign Affairs Qin Gang dismissed the story calling it “hardly convincing” and said it raises “suspicions over the motives behind it.”

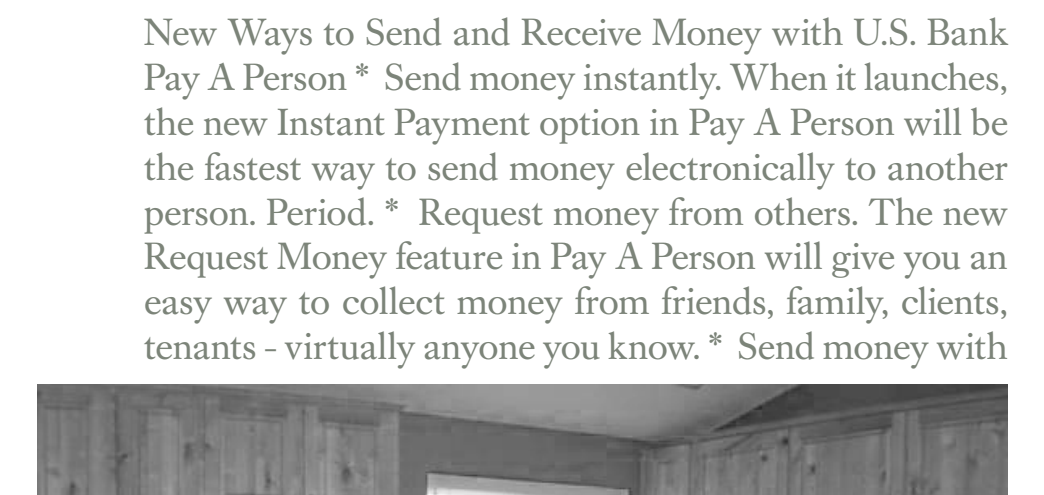

The historic, nearly four hour meeting began around 9 am. While the discussion Friday morning was meant to focus on executive clemency for Leonard Peltier, the conversation touched on many subjects, as Mr. Peltier was eager to hear the Special Rapporteur's perspective on the worldwide condition of indigenous peoples. In a trial that is widely recognized as a miscarriage of justice, Leonard Peltier was convicted in 1977, in connection with a shootout with US Government forces, where two Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and one young Indian man lost their lives. Every piece of evidence to convict Mr. Peltier has been since proven false.

This course will focus on erasure poetry, meaning poetry created by excising significant portions of a found text, which is then edited, shaped, and structured by the poet. Questions we will address in the class include: When may one take liberties with someone else's text? How does one reconcile found texts with one's own voice as a poet? How does one present erasure material from a visual standpoint (meaning its layout on the printed page)? In what ways have writers blended erasure poetry with procedural and constraint-based writing? Finally, what is the relationship between an erasure poem and the original source text (i.e., does the erasure always function as a critique, parody, or argument about the original text)? We will also discuss how one chooses a source text for an erasure poem, as well as strategies for editing, revising, and placing erasure poems with literary magazines and small presses. Every week students will receive feedback on erasure projects, with the option to work toward a book-length erasure manuscript or numerous shorter projects. Readings will include excerpts from Yedda Morrisons Darkness (an erasure of Joseph Conrads classic work, Heart of Darkness), Ronald Johnsons Radi Os (an erasure of John Miltons Paradise Lost), Srikanth Reddys Voyager, and other texts to be assigned based on the students interests.

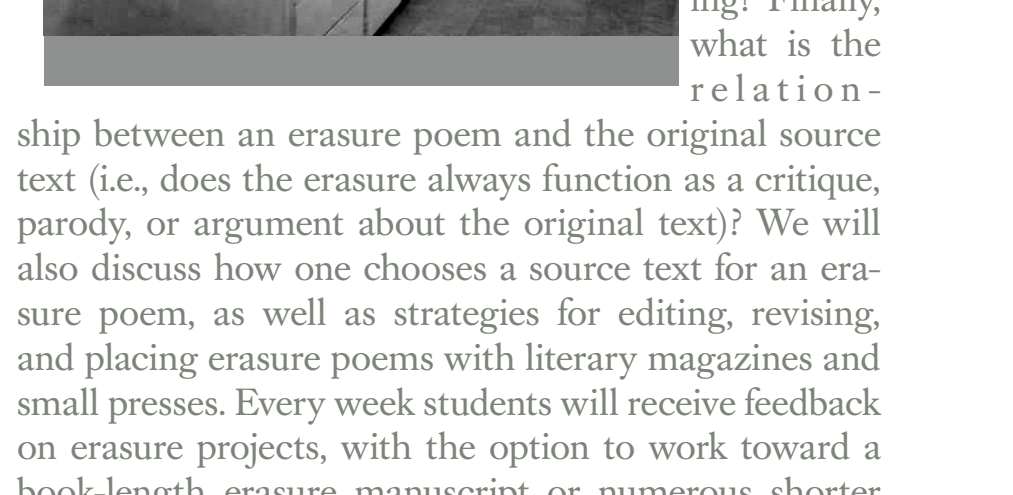

The past decade has seen conferences and workshops on managing as designing, design management, business design, and changing the decision-making paradigm in management. Universities teach design to management students and management to design students. We sometimes think of managers as designers, even though they may not be conscious of the design practices and methods they use. In the midst of this development, service design has emerged as an important issue in professional conferences and research journals, in business and government. Overall, the boundaries between professional fields have become increasingly fuzzy. For example, marketing departments claim that they have long developed services. Similarly, design thinking is moving through university departments and corporate offices at top speed - sometimes as a useful paradigm, other times as a fashion fad.

The typical reaction to a question or objection raised by a potential customer is to try and provide an immediate answer. After gaining some sales experience, you will have heard all the questions and objections, and will have a ready answer for each. I would encourage you to resist the temptation to blurt out an immediate answer, and instead restate your clients question or objection in your own words. This is a simple thing to do once you get the hang of it, but you will be amazed at how much it impacts your ability to help your customer solve her own questions or perceived problems. That's a real key - helping your client solve her own problems, instead of trying to solve them for her.

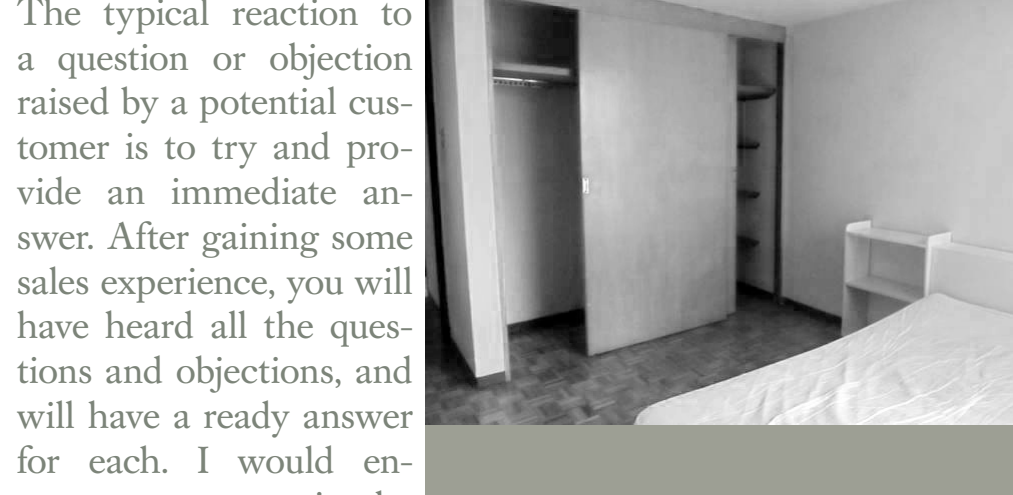

The structures of the world-system are today challenged in various forms: the process of integration and unification in Latin America, including the proclamation of Socialism for the twenty-first century; the Islamic Revolution, which has been forming ties with the progressive governments of Latin America; and the occupy movement and the movements of the indignados in the core nations, which has included isolated calls for revolution, without necessarily having a well-developed understanding of what a revolution is. These dynamics are occurring at the time when the world-system confronts a structural crisis that global political institutions and authorities are unable to resolve.

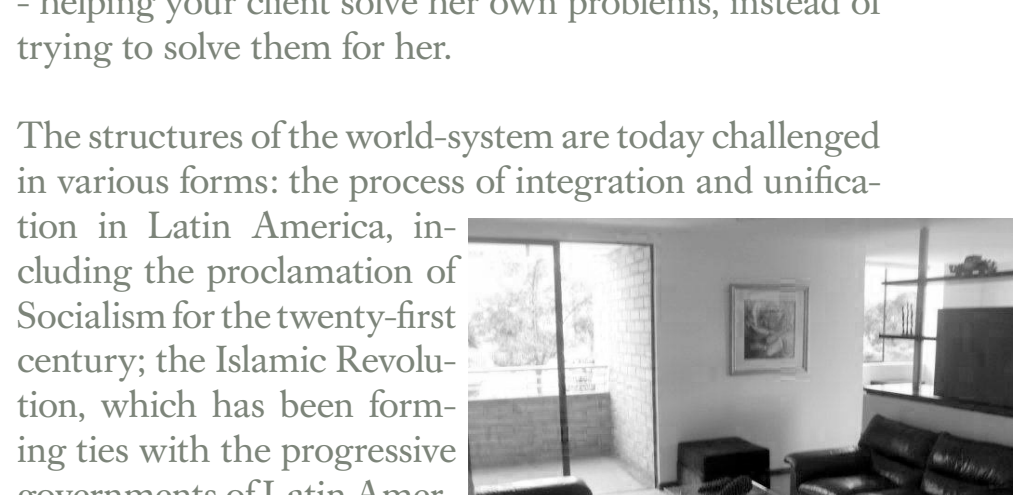

Hi Everybody, This is a bit of a late posting but just wanted you to know that as we were headed south out of town yesterday around noon to come to Eugene, I found our cosmopolitan adult RED-SHOULDERED HAWK perching in a small tree in a vacant grass lot at the corner of Pacific Boulevard and 24th Ave, just SE of the West Albany HS football field. Pretty sure this is the same bird that is periodically observed along Pacific Blvd (usually perched on a power line hunting) towards the south end of town. I have seen it on several occasions between 29th and 37th Aves right along Pacific Blvd. Can never predict where or when it will show up but yesterday's find is the closest location to the downtown area that I have seen it so far. It seemed pretty comfortable perched in that tree with traffic going by in close proximity :)

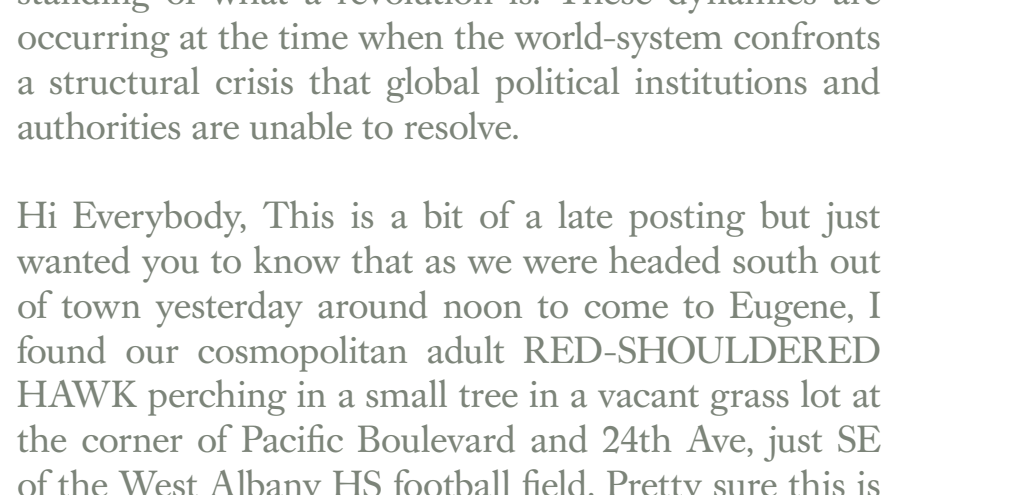

Not so long ago, the pundits and the investors saw the “emerging markets” - a euphemism for China, India, Brazil, and some others - as the rescuers of the world economy. They were the ones that would sustain growth, and therefore capital accumulation, when the United States, the European Union and Japan were all faltering in their previous and traditional role as the mainstays of Coded switches to prevent the unauthorized use of nuclear weapons were finally added to the control systems of American missiles and bombers in the early 1970s. The Air Force was not pleased, and considered the new security measures to be an insult, a lack of confidence in personnel. Although the Air Force now denies this claim, according to more than one source, the code necessary to launch a missile was set to be the same at every Minuteman site: 00000000.

The next winter storm is ready to impact the Plains and Midwest with snow and ice Tuesday into Wednesday. Heaviest snow is forecast from central Kansas through central Missouri and Illinois, into central Indiana. This same system could bring a foot of snow to northern Pennsylvania into central New England on Wednesday.

A Campbellsville man who previously pled guilty to violating federal child exploitation laws was sentenced to 15 years in prison, followed by 15 years of supervised release yesterday, by Chief United States District Court Judge Joseph H. McKinley, Jr., announced David J. Hale, United States Attorney for the Western District of Kentucky.

Michael William Bolter, age 42, pleaded guilty to a two-count Indictment on November 15, 2013. The indictment charged him with distributing and possessing child pornography. Bolter had a 2001 child pornography conviction in Bristol Superior Court of Massachusetts.

While working online in an undercover capacity on December 19, 2012, a deputy sheriff in Taylor County observed an IP address for a computer that had been sharing images of child pornography. The deputy sheriff downloaded numerous files of child pornography from the computer with the previously identified IP address. He obtained and executed a state search warrant (on January 29, 2013) at the physical address associated with the IP address during which law enforcement officials seized a Toshiba laptop.

Law enforcement officials identified Michael William Bolter as the person using the computer to trade child pornography. During an interview conducted simultaneously with execution of the search warrant, Bolter admitted that child pornography images would be on his computer. Subsequent forensic examination of the computer by the Federal Bureau of Investigation revealed approximately 3,000 still images and 50 movie files containing child pornography. Many of the files were recovered from a folder labeled "My shared folder" within a peer-to-peer file sharing program on the Toshiba laptop.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Jo E. Lawless prosecuted the case. The Taylor County Sheriff's Department and Louisville Division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (both members of the Kentucky Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force) conducted the investigation.

FBI If you had any faith left in anonymous email services, now would be the time to let that go. New court documents show that in chasing down associates of Freedom Hosting, the FBI managed to download the entire email database of TorMail. And now it's using that information to take on the Darknet. It's unknown exactly how many users or how much data is in the TorMail network, but we do know that the FBI has it all. The agency obtained a search warrant for a TorMail account connected to a Florida man accused of stealing credit card numbers in order to search its own copy of the database. It appears that the FBI acquired the database while using malware to investigate Freedom Hosting last year. As Wired put it: "The tactic suggests the FBI is adapting to the age of big-data with an NSA-style collect-everything approach, gathering information into a virtual lock box, and leaving it there until it can obtain specific authority to tap it later."

When we were at Ridgefield NWR Monday (Feb. 3), we stopped at one spot where two deer were munching away. (They were does, both tagged and had radio collars.) My husband saw some flapping of large wings on the ground in a deep, grassy area between the trees, near the deer. The deer didn't seem to care much about the activity on the ground. We couldn't see much, except an occasional large wing flap. The feathers looked dark. Then we began to hear a raptor screech coming the scene, which went on for a few minutes. At first we thought perhaps there was an injured bird on the ground, when suddenly a female barrier flew from the grassy area. There was still a bird on the ground, but we couldn't see what it was. Since you can't leave your car on the drive through at Ridgefield, we had to try to see with our eyes; our binoculars weren't helping. We finally saw what looked like maybe a red tail, walking around the area. It didn't seem to be injured, so perhaps we were witnessing two raptors tussling over a kill. What do others think about this likelihood of this? What about the screeching we heard? What would the two birds be doing on the ground if not eating?

There are 2.3 million people in US prisons in conditions that are often inhumane and at worst life threatening. An estimated 80,000 of US prisoners are locked up in solitary confinement, which means in a 6 ft x 9 ft cell containing little more than a bunk bed, toilet, sink, shelf, and unmovable stool. Prisoners in solitary confinement are let out in leg irons, handcuffs and belly chains for "exercise" two or three times a week in dog-kennel-type runs. Bathing is sporadic and the food often miserable and insufficient. One third of prisoners in solitary confinement are thought to be mentally ill and half are placed in solitary for nonviolent crimes.

Zenjoji is both the 10th temple of the Izumo 33 Kannon pilgrimage and the twenty fourth temple of the Chugok 33 Kannon Pilgrimage. It is a mountain top temple and has a fine pair of nio in the nio-mon at the base. It is believed to have been founded by Gyoki which would put it in the early eighth century. It is now a Tendai temple. There were 4 small shrines within the grounds.

Converting tar-sands oil into usable fuels requires a huge amount of energy, and much of the black gunk that's refined out of the crude in this process ends up as petroleum coke. Petcoke is like concentrated coal -- denser and dirtier than anything that comes out of a mine. It can be burned just like coal to produce power, but petcoke emits up to 15 percent more climate pollution. (It also contains up to 12 times as much sulfur, not to mention a slew of heavy metals.) In Canada, the stuff is largely treated like a waste product; the country has stockpiled nearly 80 million tons of it. Here in the U.S., petcoke is sometimes burned in coal plants, but it's so filthy that the EPA has stopped issuing any new licenses for its use as fuel. "Literally, in terms of climate change," says Stockman, "it's the dirtiest fuel on the planet."

The install isn't difficult, just time consuming. I upgraded my PowerBook's HD before, installed a better super-drive and replaced the PRAM battery, so I'm comfortable with the procedure.

I mistakenly thought the Mercury Legacy SSD would be a walk in the park but I can't get my PowerBook to see it. The SSD is visible when connected to a Mac Pro via an external USB adapter. It seems to be fine with the Mac Pro, just not the legacy PowerBook.

On the PowerBook, the SSD does not appear in Disk Utility or System Profiler. I booted from my OSX install DVD. I also tried booting in TARGET DISK mode. The DVD could be seen by the other Mac but no SSD in TD Mode.

I did a PMU and PRAM resets. No luck. The connectors seem ok and firmly seated. I reconnected the 5400RPM drive and that worked ok. I still had the original smaller drive lying around and that worked too. Just no joy with the Mercury Legacy Pro SSD.

I reformatted the SSD on an intel Mac Pro and made sure the partition scheme is set to Apple Partition Map The PPC macs still don't see the SSD. I've tried now with my PPC Quad-G5, a Dual-G4 and my iPowerbook. The Mac Pro will see the SSD but not the PPC Macs.

OWC Tech support was closed this weekend when I was having such fun with the SSD. The OWC sales support provided a few suggestions but nothing that resolved my problem. I submitted a detailed email to OWC tech support but have not received any response yet.

The same storm that brought heavy snow and significant ice accumulations to the Southeast and Mid-Atlantic has moved up the East Coast, bringing significant winter weather to the Northeast. Heavy snow and gusty winds are expected in parts of the Appalachians and New England into Friday. Conditions will begin to improve as the storm pulls away into the Canadian Maritimes by Friday afternoon.

Angela Albers, one of five people profiled in the report, spent 21 days in jail in 2012 after incurring more than $3,000 in fines and court fees for a drug arrest, and two charges of driving with a suspended license. "I was getting $126 a week from unemployment," she told the ACLU. "It wasn't even enough to pay for rent and food, much less fines. I tried to talk to the clerk and explain my situation, but the clerk just told me that I had to pay the $100 per month the court ordered." Although data on the cost of incarcerating people specifically for unpaid debts is hard to come by, Hernandez believes the costs outweigh the benefits. "We could calculate the cost of incarcerating a person for any number of days, but even that is significantly below the real cost of incarceration," Hernandez said. "You'd have to factor in judicial time, clerk time, and police time in serving these warrants, and that doesn't even account for lost of productivity when you throw someone in jail."

A resident of Erie, Pennsylvania has been indicted by a federal grand jury in Erie on charges of violating federal laws relating to the sexual exploitation of children, United States Attorney David J. Hickton announced today.

The two-count indictment named Graham K. Yahn, 26, as the sole defendant.

According to the indictment presented to the court, Yahn received and possessed computer images depicting minors engaging in sexually explicit conduct.

The law provides for a maximum total sentence of 30 years in prison, a fine of $500,000, or both. Under the Federal Sentencing Guidelines, the actual sentence imposed would be based upon the seriousness of the offenses and the prior criminal history, if any, of the defendant.

Assistant United States Attorney Christian A. Trabold is prosecuting this case on behalf of the government.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation conducted the investigation leading to the indictment in this case.

An indictment or information is an accusation. A defendant is presumed innocent unless and until proven guilty.

The revolt in Ukraine is an amazing, long-lasting uprising. It was spurred by the president refusing to sign an agreement allying Ukraine with Europe and by an economy that is struggling. There is also long-term opposition to President Viktor Yanukovich who some describe as running a corrupt, gangster government. And, many in the country also want to break from their alliance with Russia. There has been open support of the Ukraine uprising by US officials including Senator John McCain as well as diplomats, who have been caught on tape discussing the government that should replace Viktor Yanukovich. Professor Michael Hudson, a research professor of economics at the University of Missouri in Kansas City, has written a book on the modern US empire, Super

Imperialism: The Economic Strategy Of American Empire,” and in a recent interview said: “If you’ve read the newspapers recently the US has just gone in to the Ukraine and has assassination squads murdering the Ukrainian leaders that do not want to push Ukraine along the neoliberal pro-European, as opposed to Russian practices.”

Dear sir/Madam You may be surprised to receive this letter from me since you do not know me personally. The purpose of my introduction is that I’m 28 years old and a Scottish citizen who was taken to Israel by my father at the young age of 9. He deceived me that I was going there on vacation and later married me off to a wealthy man in Israel who is 30 years older than me. I was thus forced into marriage and when I objected I was beaten and raped by this man. I was locked up in a house for three years after which I submitted and decided to accept my faith, knowing that was the only way out. After I got my freedom back I have been allowed by my husband to have access to his businesses. Over the years I am been able to acquire some money $20,000,000.00 (twenty million dollars), which I diverted into a private finance house without his knowledge. Right now we are divorced and he don’t want to allow me to leave because his older than me and feels I need to stay under his care till the divorce paper is being signed. Right now I am waiting for our divorce paper to be ready which will take time and I don’t want him to know I have such amount of money because I have really suffered in his hands for such a long time, I have a friend who secured the funds for me in a security company , This is where I need your assistance to contact him, He works with the Cargo courier company and his ready to help us move the money to avoid being detected by my husband. After which you will help me secure the fund before I get out of Israel. If you know you are capable of handling such a huge amount of money respond to me and I will compensate you by giving you 40% of the total fund.

Note also that you must keep this transaction secret as my life is at stake if my husband or any of his relatives hear of this transaction they will stone me to death or hang me. Respond to me immediately so we can proceed via my personal email.

Steven Marshall Fout, 24, of Sweetwater, Tennessee, was sentenced on February 20, 2014, to serve 151 months in prison by the Honorable Danny C. Reeves, visiting U.S. District Judge. The sentence was imposed as the result of a guilty plea entered by Fout in June 2013 to federal charges of knowingly distributing and possessing child pornography.

Upon his release from prison, Judge Reeves imposed a 30-year term during which Fout’s activities will be supervised by the U.S. Probation Office. He was also ordered to pay $2,500 in restitution to victims whose digital images were found on in his possession.

Also, as a result of the conviction, the federal Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act will require Fout to register following his incarceration with the state sex offender registry anywhere he resides, is employed, or is a student.

The investigation leading to the conviction and sentencing of Fout was conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Assistant U.S. Attorney Matthew T. Morris represented the United States at sentencing.

Solitary is both ineffective as a rehabilitation technique and incredibly harmful to the mental health. Researchers argue that just these hints of the damage wrought by solitary confinement -- and the way it seems to make prisoners less-equipped to re-enter society after their sentence -- indicate that it falls within a category of discipline banned by the eight amendment: cruel and unusual punishment.

United States Attorney A. Lee Bentley, III announces that Sean-Michael Smith (25, Jacksonville) today pleaded guilty to distribution of child pornography. Smith faces a mandatory minimum penalty of five years, up to 20 years in federal prison. A sentencing date has not yet been set. Smith was indicted on August 8, 2013.

According to court records, on July 3, 2013, a St. Johns County detective was actively investigating computer users who were distributing child pornography via a peer-to-peer file sharing network over the Internet. On that same date, the detective was able to successfully download three videos depicting minors engaging in sexually explicit conduct from an Internet protocol (IP) address registered to Sean-Michael Smith. Based on this information, the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) obtained a search warrant for Smith’s residence. When the warrant was executed on August 2, 2013, Smith admitted to previously downloading and viewing child pornography, including one of the videos downloaded by the detective on July 3, 2013. Smith also stated that he had been viewing child pornography for 10 years and admitted that whenever the file sharing program on his computer was active, any content in the shared folder would be available for downloading by other users on the file sharing network. This case was investigated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Florida Department of Law Enforcement and St. Johns County Sheriff’s Office. It is being prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Didri W. Robinson.

An unidentified North Korean woman on a bus weeps as she holds her South Korean relative’s hand after the Separated Family Reunion Meeting at Diamond Mountain in North Korea, Tuesday, Feb. 25, 2014. The first reunions of North and South Koreans in more than three years have been held in North Korea. The final group of Koreans to participate in reunions ends Tuesday.

The protesters allied with the May One Movement workers’ federation held a brief program of speeches denouncing U.S. imperialism in front of the seaside embassy before dispersing peacefully. No arrests were made and there were no serious injuries. About 500 American soldiers are based in the south where they have been providing Philippine troops anti-terrorism training since 2002. Protesters say their presence violates Philippine sovereignty. The Philippine Constitution allows foreign military bases only under a treaty. Obama is scheduled to visit the Philippines in April, part of a tour of Asia which will also take him to Japan, South Korea and Malaysia to boost diplomatic and economic ties with the region. Elmer Labog, chairman of the labor federation, said the protest was meant to show opposition to what he called a “conspiracy” between the Philippine and American governments to maintain U.S. troops in the country by raising the “China bogey.”

Electron MicroScope images of Retina’s Rods and Cones sonified from Left to Right. Images were actually Wavelet decompositions. This was an experiment to see if wavelet decompositions could be used as duets without any modifications. It seems they do fine, but an extra effect was added to accentuate the decomposition by assigning each sonified decomposition to a different channel.

A new, populist, explicitly anti-capitalist party must emerge and start organizing at the grassroots level to build power over time. And this new political party must be led by and represent the young, the unemployed, underemployed and misemployed, people of color, people in debt, and everyone else who has been victimized by capitalism.

This paper focuses on the ontological conditions necessary for the constitution of an architectural object that can involve in procedures that unfold in real time. It examines the changes inflicted by the constitution of the virtual object in opposition to the relations of representation-critique (western metaphysics) and the consequences in the understanding of time, the relation of the fragment to a totality and the dipoles produced by this correlation. Elements from the theory of systems (informational, biological) and the function of force-fields are used as mediums in understanding the...

Dear Friend, I am Colonel Marcus Luthan, and I am a member of NATO-ISAF Task Force and Provincial Reconstruction Troops in Southern Afghanistan. In line with my business and family interest in the UK, I have a very confidential proposal for you.

Based on the USA legislative and executive decision of pulling our troops out of here as scheduled, I have decided to contact you for this business opportunity and relationship. I want to inform you that I have in my possession the sum of USD$11.5 million (Eleven Million, Five Hundred Thousand United States Dollar) which I got from crude oil deals in Iraq. I deposited this money with a Red Cross Agent informing him that I am making contact for the real owner of the money and it is under my power to approve whoever comes forth for the money.

I want to invest the money in a good business as soon as my service here ends, anyway you will advice me on that since I am not a business person. I am solely interested in making a life for my two daughters and therefore I shall require the service of a person who is trustworthy and sincere and I am willing to make you the beneficiary of the proposed funds and as well allow you to invest for my Kids in the event anything happens to me here. I am an American and a high profile intelligence officer, so I have a 100% authentic means of transferring the proposed funds through diplomatic courier service therefore all I just need is your acceptance and all is done.

Where I am at moment we can only communicate through our military communication facilities that are secured so nobody can monitor our emails, then I can explain in details to you. I will only reach you through email, because our calls might be monitored, I just have to be sure whom I am dealing with.

I need someone I could deal with on trust, so this is the most reason why I am contacting you to work with me as the receiving partner in your country. If you accept, I will put you forward as the beneficiary of the funds and transfer the fund to you because as a uniformed person I cannot be parading such huge amount so I need to present someone as the beneficiary.

I am writing from a fresh email account so if you are not interested do not reply to this email and please delete this message, if no response from you after 3 days I shall then search for someone else.

If you are interested, then let me know as to enable us proceed as time is very important to me. I wait for your contact details so we can go into action. In less than 5 days, the funds should have been in your position and I will come over for onward investments and settlements. I shall give to you 30% of the sum and 70% is for me because I know that nothing goes for nothing. I hope I am been fair to you for your assistance as the receiving partner.

Get back to me urgently; if you are interested in this business deal please contact me via my following email address: colmarcusll1@gmail.com Kind regards, Col. Marcus Luthan

1. Bring a pot of water with the potatoes to boil, turn down to a simmer, cover and cook until the potatoes are fork tender. Drain. 2. In the meantime, combine the milk/cream, garlic, and peppercorns in a small saucepan. Bring just to a simmer, then remove from the heat, stir in the sugar and salt and allow to infuse while the potatoes cook. 3. In a large frying pan, melt 1 Tbs. of the butter over medium-high heat until foaming, then add the cabbage, stirring occasionally, and cook until softened and starting to get nicely browned in places. Remove from the heat. 4. Cut 3 of the remaining Tbs. of butter into chunks and place them in the bottom of a bowl. Strain the infused milk/cream into the bowl. Then, using a potato ricer, rice the potatoes into the bowl. (If you do not have a potato ricer, you can either mash the potatoes or blend with an immersion blender.) Gently fold the potatoes, cream and butter together with a wooden spoon. Then gently stir in the cabbage and the chives/green onions. Season with more salt to taste. 5. Divide into bowls. Make a little divot in the potato-cabbage mixture in each bowl and add a pat of the remaining butter to each. 6. If you have any leftovers, you can make them into potato-cabbage cakes the next day. Just stir in 1 beaten egg per cup of leftovers. Mix just until combined, then gently form the mixture into patties. Fry in butter until golden brown on each side, then serve.

Dear Friend, Do accept my sincere apologies if my mail does not meet your personal ethics. I would like to introduce myself, I am David Lambert and I work with the staff in the accounts management section of a well-known bank here in the United Kingdom.

One of our accounts is holding a balance of 48,375,000 (Forty Eight million, Three Hundred and Seventy Five Great British Pounds) and has been dormant for some years now. From my investigations and confirmations, the owner of this account died on the 16th of February 1999 in an autocrash in Birmingham, here in the UK.

Since then no one has responded in anyway with regards to claiming the funds. As far as we can tell he has no family member that is aware of the existence of either the account or the funds. Information from the National Immigration Office also states that he was single on entry into the UK.

I have confidentially discussed this issue with some of the bank officials and we have agreed to find a reliable foreign partner to deal with us. We thus propose to do business with you, standing in as the next-of-kin. We will process these funds from the deceased and release them to you, after due processes have been followed.

This transaction is totally risk free as the funds is legitimate and devoid of any illegal/illicit activity. Please think this over and should you be interested, do let me hear from you ASAP. Regards, David Lambert

One of the largest collections of jewellery in the world, the San Gennaro treasure is comparable with the crown jewels of France and England, but rather than belonging to the former ruling dynasties, the State or the Church, the treasure belongs to the people, to the Neapolitans themselves. San Gennaro, Saint Januarius, the principal patron saint of Naples, was martyred during the persecutions of Diocletian. The saint's blood, collected in two ampoules, liquefies three times a year; this has happened on the same dates for centuries; a phenomenon that science, even today, cannot explain. On 13 January 1527 an unusual contract was notarized between the people of Naples and the saint, who had been dead for over 1,200.

I am a lawyer Anthony Frank Mendis of the.... DEPARTMENT OF LIBERTY AND JUSTICE OF THE COURT IN THE ACT (United Kingdom) I have worked in the court for 30 years and handle some of the case before the police arrested some men that scam a woman in Holland 70 000 euros, but the police has hand him over to the Interpol but the case was reported to my office to charge them to court and the Interpol arrested them all but after the investigation we found out that fraudster by name Michael has some of his partners who work together with him and they are from Ghana, Nigeria and Italy and we have transferred the woman's money back to her in Holland and we still discover a lot of people who he has scam their money and I have no much time to explain all this for now that I have the case of others to handle, but because the police said I should write this mail to you as they also discover your information on his black berry phone on behalf of Richard Walker a major and that boss also helps you brought out your own case and so that we can handle all at once, but right now we are also waiting for the document as well to travel to get his part Mr. Mendis...

EARLY one morning a team of heavily armed police officers burst into the home of Eugene Mallory, an 80-year-old retired engineer in Los Angeles county. What happened next is unclear. The officer who shot Mr Mallory six times with a submachine gun says he was acting in self defence--Mr Mallory also had a gun, though he was in bed and never fired it. Armed raids can be confusing: according to an investigation, the policeman initially believed that he had ordered Mr Mallory to "Drop the gun" before opening fire. However, an audio recording revealed that he said these words immediately after shooting him. Mr Mallory died. His family are suing the police.

Such tragedies are too common in America. One reason is that the police have become more militarised. Raids by Special Weapons and Tactics (SWAT) units used to be rare: according to Peter Kraska of Eastern Kentucky University there were only about 3,000 a year in the early 1980s. Now they are routine: perhaps 50,000 a year.

"My son has been on hunger strike for six days now," one relative of a detainee, who wished to remain anonymous for fear of retaliation, told Villalpando. Other relatives told Latino Advocacy that family members detained in the facility had ended their hunger strike because of threats from guards --- who had reportedly told them they would be deported or have their asylum cases closed if they continued.

GEO Group, Inc., the for-profit prison corporation that owns the two detention centers along with 98 other correctional, detention and residential treatment facilities in the U.S. and abroad, moved several detainees into "medical isolation" as a result of their participation in the hunger strike, Villalpando said.

Any detainees at Northwest Detention Center who were identified as going without food for 72 hours were placed under medical observation away from the general population for monitoring, ICE said.

The government agency, a branch of the Department of Homeland Security, contends that it has taken no punitive actions against individuals participating in the hunger strike.

Activist investor Dan Loeb sued the directors of auction house Sotheby's on Tuesday, aiming to force the removal of poison pill protections that prevent his getting seats on the board. Loeb, Sotheby's largest shareholder since he mounted an attack on the company last year to force reforms, asked a Delaware court to decide whether a board can put up barriers to protect itself from a shareholder seeking board representation. Loeb's hedge fund Third Point holds 9.6 percent of Sotheby's, but has been prevented from building a larger stake by the board's defensive action last October. It instituted a plan for a huge issue of share purchase rights to all shareholders if any one breaches the 10 percent level. The poison pill plan would effectively make it extremely expensive for Loeb to build his power in the company and protect the board. Loeb's suit called it "illegal" and asked the court to overrule it, saying his intention is only to gain seats on the board to change management policies. "At no time has Third Point had any desire to take control of Sotheby's to remedy these problems," the suit said. "By adopting a poison pill without any threat of a takeover, the Sotheby's board showed its disdain for shareholders and accountability and proved that its goal continues to be entrenchment over the interests of its owners," said Loeb's attorney Tariq Mundiya of Willkie Farr & Gallagher LLP. Loeb last year attacked the board for wasteful spending on themselves and a poor competitive position against rival high-end art auctioneer Christies'. In January, the board bowed to some of the pressure, announcing a $300 million special dividend, a $150 million share buyback, restructuring of operations and possible property sales.

The wealthiest Congress in history, the first in which a majority of members are millionaires, we have a one-sided discussion demanding cuts only in public assistance to the poor, while ignoring public assistance to the rich. And a one-sided discussion leads to a one-sided and myopic policy. We're cutting one kind of subsidized food - food stamps - at a time when Gallup finds that almost one-fifth of American families struggled in 2013 to afford food.

In 1999 as the American century came to a close the U.S. government spent $24 billion on public housing and rental subsidies for the poor. But in that same year it spend $72 billion in home ownership subsidies for the middle classes and the wealthy. Subsidies that are never considered to be welfare and there is no stigma attached to this dependency. In fact, it is seen as an entitlement. Why is this so? History matters. The America welfare stage was setup in the wake of the great depression to create a new deal of social programs. But from the very start it was divided into two channels; social insurance programs made available as entitlements and public assistants programs made available as welfare. Need I point out the race and gender dimensions of this divide? It is time for America to reconsider who is dependent on welfare. Take a listen.

Dear Friend, I know this mail will come to you as a surprise because you don't know me, but knowing somebody starts in a day. I have gone through your business profile and I decided to contact you in good faith, with utmost assurance that you will never regret giving your attention to this mail.

My name is Mr Narith Lim. I am the Director in charge of audit and account unit department with a Bank here in Asia. You will know me more as we go on.

In December 2004 a foreign Customer of our bank died with his little family in tsunami disaster on the 26th December 2004 in Sumatra Indonesia. The huge deposit he made in our bank early 2003 has been dormant and unclaimed due to unavailability of a next of kin to claim the deposit in my Bank. In accordance with the laws in this country, the deposit will be transferred to the Government treasury account if nobody comes to claim the deposit as his next of kin.

I am his account officer and I know he have no next of kin. I also know the source of the fund he deposited in my bank.

As I said, I am the account officer to the deceased customer and I have the right to approve next of kin to my bank. As result of that, I want to present you to my bank as the official next Of Kin because you share almost the same name with him.

so I want to present you to my bank so that my bank can transfer the money to you, then we proceed for the sharing. I want to work with you on it. The amount involve is US$13,000,000.00 (Thirteen Million United State Dollars). plus the interest-rate since 2003. Everything will be 100% risk free and I will tell you how everything will be executed in my next mail if your interested to achieve this success with me. Sincerely, Mr Narith Lim
